Local Access Forum to Lakes

LAKE DISTRICT

This document is brought to you by the Lake District Local Access Forum.

The Forum acts as a statutory independent body that champions the improvement and management of public access.

It gathers the views of all those with an interest in the development and use of access and advises the National Park Authority, recommending options for the improvement of public access to land in the National Park.

You can find out more details on the work of the forum here

www.lakedistrict.gov.uk/caringfor/local_access_forum

This leaflet does not address access to rivers, smaller lakes and tarns

Fishing

When putting this document together we found that the lakedistrictfishing.net website had far more comprehensive advice including access to rivers as well as details on where to get permits.

Please make sure you have a rod license which are available from information centres and the Environment Agency

Events / Commercial use

Although we have listed where there is public access to water, this access does not automatically translate as permission for events or commercial use.

As a general guide if there are more than 50 people in your group you should seek advice from the land owner. Likewise if you intend to bring any infrastructure (e.g. a gazebo)

Weather

The weather can be extreme in the Lake District and can change VERY quickly. Wind can make paddling boats challenging and often the water temperatures are extremely cold.

Use the water within your ability, don't be afraid to ask advice from local providers. The only stupid question is the one you didn't ask.

Shoreline Access

Please don't assume access on the lake for your activity equals access to the shoreline. Many lake shorelines are private land and can be sensitive habitats.

The National Park provides maps online for Bassenthwaite, Ullswater, Coniston, Derwent and Windermere. This provides detail on access points and where there is private shoreline.

Invasive non-native species

Protecting the freshwaters in the Lake District from invasive non-native species is something that we must all address and take responsibility for.

Across the world similar environments are suffering from invasive non-native species taking over the local habitats. To avoid this, please play your part by ditching these hitch-hiking species before you arrive.

Check your equipment and clothing for living organisms. Pay particular attention to areas that are damp or hard to inspect.

Clean and wash all equipment, footwear and clothes thoroughly. If you do come across any organisms, leave them at the water body where you found them.

Dry all equipment and clothing – some species can live for many days in damp conditions.
